A close-up photograph of a plate of food. The plate is filled with white, fluffy rice. Mixed in with the rice are pieces of browned meat, possibly chicken or beef, and some green vegetables, which appear to be leafy greens or small pieces of lettuce. A silver fork is visible on the right side of the plate, partially submerged in the rice. The plate itself is white with a thin grey rim. The background is a solid yellow color.

The Patna Biryani House is a small, family-run establishment located at 22, Main Street, Patna. This small and historic restaurant is known for its large portions of flavorful biryanis, making it a popular spot during lunchtime despite the wait for a seat. The menu, though limited, offers tasty options like chicken, mutton, and vegetable biryanis. While some reviews mention dry chicken and overly sweet mutton stew, others praise the quality and quantity of the biryanis, especially the well-cooked chicken pieces. The prices are reasonable, making it a great spot for Mughlai food in Patna. Overall, this place is recommended for biryani lovers seeking an authentic experience.
