While some rave about the quick service and impressive freshness of dishes like chicken nasi goreng and scallop dumplings, others report disappointing entrees such as ketchup-laden Szechuan chicken and overly oily spare ribs. Favorable mentions highlight the restaurant's delightful Yum Cha menu and attentive service, which elevate the dining experience. However, the steep pricing has drawn criticism, with some questioning the value for money. Overall, this establishment offers potential for fantastic meals but may falter with certain dishes, leaving patrons divided on their culinary journey.
